

Highlights of the Last Great Debate

Nixon, Kennedy State Their Basic Positions Before American People

NEW YORK (AP) — Highlights of last night's fourth television debate between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy:

Cuba

NIXON — "We are cutting off the significant items that the Cuban regime needs in order to survive. . . . By cutting off our diplomatic relations as we have, we will quarantine this regime so that the people of Cuba themselves will take care of Mr. Castro. . . . I think that Sen. Kennedy's policies and recommendations for the handling of the Castro regime are probably the most dangerously irresponsible recommendations that he has made during the course of the campaign. In effect, what Sen. Kennedy recommends is that the United States government should give help to exiles and to those within Cuba who oppose the Castro regime provided they are anti-Batista. . . . If we were to follow that recommendation we would lose all of our friends in Latin America, we would probably be condemned in the United Nations and we would not accomplish our objective. . . . It would be an open invitation for Mr. Khrushchev to come in. And to engage us in what would be a civil war and possibly even worse. . . .

Quemoy and Matsu

NIXON — "He (Kennedy) can say now that he no longer believes that a line should be drawn leaving these islands out of the perimeter of defense. If he says that, to be successful they have to be in a multilateral. . . . The big struggle will be to prevent the influence of Castro spreading to other countries. . . . We are going to have to try to provide closer ties to associate ourselves with the great desire of these people for a better life if we are going to prevent Castro's influence from spreading throughout all of Latin America. . . . His influence is growing enormously because this administration has ignored Latin islands should be part of an over-America. You yourself said, Mr. Vice President, a month ago, that if we had provided the kind of economic aid five years ago that we are now providing we might never have had Castro."

U. S. Prestige

NIXON — "American prestige abroad will be just as high as the spokesmen for America allow it to be. . . . We aren't going to move America forward and we are not going to be able to lead the world to win the struggle for freedom if we have a permanent inferiority complex about American achievement because we are first in the

Nuclear Tests

KENNEDY — "I think the next president of the United States should make one last effort to se-ture an agreement on the cessation of tests. . . . I don't think that even if that effort fails it would be necessary to carry on tests in the atmosphere which pollute the atmosphere. . . . I am most concerned about the whole problem of the spread of atomic weapons."

NIXON — "We have been negotiating to get tests inspected and to get an agreement for many months. . . . I have reached the conclusion that the Soviet Union is actually filibustering. . . . They may be cheating. . . . There should be no tests in the atmosphere. That rules out any fallout, but as far as underground tests are concerned, and particularly underground tests for developing peaceful uses of atomic energy, we should not allow the Soviet filibuster to continue. I think it is time for them to fish or cut bait."

Summit Conference

NIXON — "I think we have to make a greater effort than we have been making at the secretary of state level, at the ambassadorial level to work out the differences that we have. And so far as the summit conference is concerned, it should only be entered upon, if the negotiations have reached the point that we have some reasonable assurance that something is going to come out of it."

U. S. Challenge to Communism

KENNEDY — "I believe we should not go to the summit until there is some reason to believe that a meeting of minds can be obtained on either Berlin, outer space or general disarmament, including nuclear testing. . . . In addition, I believe the next president, in January and February, should go to work in building the strength of the United States. The Soviet Union does understand strength."

Economic Progress

NIXON — "I have made recommendations which I am confident will move the American economy ahead, move it firmly and soundly so that there will never be a time when the Soviet Union will be able to challenge our superiority in this field."

Jap Premier Repeats Support of Alliance With United States

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Hayato Ikeda today rejected neutralism for Japan and reiterated his support of the alliance with the United States. At the same time he again advocated improved relations with Communist China. Japanese who advocate neutrality, Ikeda told the House of Representatives, "ignore the fact that Japan's power has an enormous bearing on the East-West power balance and lack insight into the position of our country, which considers cooperation with free countries the primary basis of national prosperity and economic development."

in Chicago, Washington and here in New York Friday night, and was with Nixon in Los Angeles while the two debated a continent apart.

It was obvious Friday night that both were far more relaxed than they were in previous meetings. Each smiled occasionally, and Kennedy once broke into a broad grin.

Neither showed the tenseness nor the rigidity that has marked their previous meetings. There probably are a couple of reasons for that. Both now have become old TV debate hands used to the mechanics of the show. And both have become thoroughly at home with their material.

Scarcely anything they said Friday night was new, and reporters who have traveled with both men have heard it all before, in almost the same words.

After each debate the pattern has been about the same. The three reporters allowed inside the studio push forward to ask the candidates how they figure they made out in this round of the so-called great debate. Kennedy rarely is in any mood for small talk, he's eager to rush away. Nixon seems eager to unbend, and would like to discuss it for awhile.

This was true again Friday night. Kennedy dashed off instantly. "See you later," he said, and went back to his wife, who had watched the debate on a set inside the studio. Nixon hung around to chat awhile.

This was the fourth and last of the debate, and the antagonists regularly scheduled debate, but Kennedy has been arguing for another.

Broadcasting Co. studio, where the combined network program originated, to make an appearance at Madison Square Garden and then take off for St. Louis, where he launches a Midwest tour. He and the vice president shook hands.

Nixon told Kennedy he had received the senator's wire, presumably one proposing a fifth debate, and would answer it. Herbert G. Klein, the vice president's press secretary, said there would be further discussion of scheduling problems and program structure. He refused to go beyond saying another contest was "in the realm of possibility."

Neither contestant personally claimed victory in No. 4. Each said it wasn't his practice to do mechanics of the show. And both said they would be home with their families.

But Robert Kennedy, the senator's brother and campaign manager, said he felt the Democratic candidate's performance was his best so far, and the candidate himself was very pleased.

Partisan Views

In Washington, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, the Democratic national chairman, said "This reinforces our belief that Senator Kennedy will win most if not all states in this election."

Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, the GOP chairman, said Nixon's showing would "carry forward the upsurge of sentiment for the Republican party."

Morton said Kennedy "demonstrated once again that he lacks the maturity judgment in foreign affairs."

Foreign policy was the subject of the debate, and the antagonists stood behind podiums angled toward each other and close enough for them to shake hands, if they'd chosen. Each appeared more relaxed than in any of their previous encounters. Nixon wore makeup, and there were no complaints about his appearance as there were after the first debate. Kennedy wore none. They rapped each other crisply but their exchanges were not as caustic as in their last engagement.

Cuban Issue

On Cuba, Nixon said Kennedy's proposal would thrust the United States into another country's internal affairs and thus alienate Latin American nations.

"I think that Senator Kennedy's policies and recommendations for the handling of the Castro regime are probably the most dangerously irresponsible recommendations that he has made during the course of his campaign," Nixon said.

Nixon also said they would invite Soviet Premier Khrushchev to come into Latin America and engage us in what would be a civil war and possibly even worse than that.

Kennedy said the United States lacked the prestige and influence to ask other countries south of the border and elsewhere to join in an economic quarantine of Cuba. Only joint action, he said, would make economic sanctions effective.

"Castro is only the beginning of our difficulty throughout Latin America," Kennedy said. He charged the Eisenhower administration with ignoring that part of the world, in which he said Castro's "influence is growing enormously."

Kennedy hung up on the Cuban question with a query of his own. He said Nixon had said last month that if the United States tracks and hit a station wagon with eight during 1959, and five years ago it now provides Castro may never have taken over, adding "Why didn't we?"

Claims Progress

The vice president, concluding the program, claimed more progress under the Eisenhower administration than under Democratic presidents.

Responding to Kennedy's criticism, Nixon said, "We aren't going to move America forward, and we are not going to be able to lead the world to win the struggle for freedom if we have a permanent inferiority complex about American achievement."

Kennedy declared the State Department has been working to divide the results of surveys which show a sharp drop in U. S. prestige abroad. Nixon said the report related particularly to the period immediately after the Soviet launched their first satellite and said he would not object to making it public.

On Way Home

After the program, a Kennedy spokesman said Nixon's comments should induce the State Department to bring out the report.

Steering Wheel Comes Off in Driver's Hands

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Henry C. Glasse turned the steering wheel of his delivery truck Thursday as he approached a slight curve, but the vehicle didn't respond. Glasse suddenly discovered the trouble. The steering wheel, it was making funeral arrangements.

The fatality was Calumet County's tenth of the year, compared with eight during 1959.

er, told him he was distracted by headlights of oncoming traffic and saw Entringer only an instant before hitting him. He said he thought the man was walking on the pavement toward the southbound vehicle.

Entringer's body was hurled some 50 feet by the impact. Coroner Leroy Hughes ruled that death was caused by a compound skull fracture.

The vehicle's right front fender and headlight was smashed. Entringer was ejected from the car by a passenger, Jerome Scott, also of Glenbeulah. The four southbound lanes were closed for the weekend from a Minnesota interchange.

Entringer, a native of St. Cloud, Minn., was not married and spent the last several years working on farms in the Chilton area. His current employer was Gilbert Hepler, whose farm is near the accident scene.

Hepler stayed at the Tom Hepler farm home on the Irish Road about one-half mile away. Gilbert Hepler said Entringer usually walked across the fields to reach the other Hepler home, according to Kosmosky.

Investigation revealed that Entringer spent part of the afternoon in Chilton taverns where he was quoted as saying he had nothing to live for. Kosmosky said the Pfeffer Funeral Home, Chilton, is making funeral arrangements.

Our next President must be at his best when the going gets toughest!

Richard Nixon stood in for a stricken President Eisenhower, and an uneasy nation was reassured.

Richard Nixon brilliantly rebutted a belligerent Khrushchev, and free men everywhere rejoiced.

Richard Nixon fearlessly faced Communist mobs in Caracas, and the world applauded his courage.

Richard Nixon skillfully settled a paralyzing steel strike, and both sides admired his fairness.

When a man is faced with a crisis, there's no substitute for experience. No other Vice President in our history has been entrusted with so many responsibilities as Richard Nixon. And during the past seven and one-half years he has shown his courage and leadership in any number of crises. His ability has won him the admiration of people everywhere. Richard Nixon has had first-hand experience in making the right decisions for America and the Free World. When the going gets toughest, when peace may depend on the right decision, there can be no denying that his experience will count.

Jingo Hails Advent Of Original Play

Attic Theatre to Premiere Work of Fox Cities Native on February Schedule

BY JINGO
Let the cymbals clash and the trumpets blare! Let the public halt, amid stride! There is news afoot that has in it the makings of an epoch. The community theater in the Fox Cities has taken another step toward its complete fulfillment.

On Feb. 4, the Attic Theater will premiere an original work by a member of its company. For the last 11 years the company has given the community fine productions of classic and Broadway favorites providing rewarding outlets for all types of theatrical bent except writing.

Now the company's first Stansbury theater performance of the season will serve as the introduction of James Auer as a playwright in a complete community production.

Jingo

Auer, a brother worker in the vineyards of the Fourth Estate and a native of part of the Fox Cities, is no newcomer in the theater.

He has been an acting and policy making member of the Attic Theater for some years. He is presiding officer of the company's governing body and his latest appearance on the boards was in "As You Like It." In addition, he has made quite a reputation as a mentalist and magician in the service club circuit.

With his typewriter and scenarios, he made a vain foray into the wilds of cinematoland, sustaining himself with his editor's blue pencil and the hickory stick of a teacher. However, he has had a book of magic published and was the official historian for the Menasha Centennial.

Janesville Man Given Polio Award

MADISON (AP)—The citation received by Donald J. MacFarlane of Janesville, a polio victim Thursday night read, "For valiant spirit and determination in building a normal, successful life."

MacFarlane, 57 and the operator of one of the nation's largest game bird farms, accepted the gallantry award from the Wisconsin Easter Seal Society at a banquet in his honor.

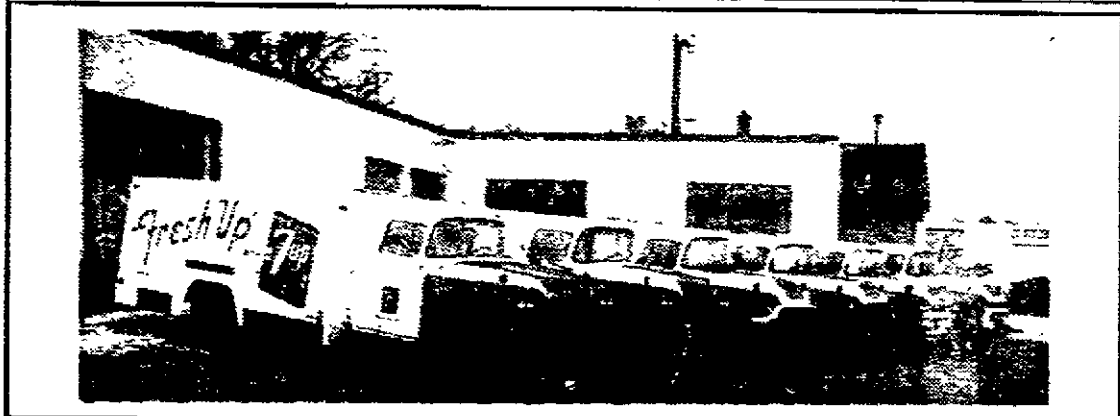

The father of five children, MacFarlane was stricken with polio 14 years ago and was left almost completely paralyzed from the waist down.

During the next seven years he was confined to a small sunroom where he directed operations of his game farm. It now comprises 270 acres on which he raises 140,000 pheasant chicks and mature birds annually for sale to game preserves and shooting clubs.

He also is serving his third term as a Rock County supervisor and is board chairman of the Janesville First Baptist Church and the University of Wisconsin Baptist student center at Madison.

First of Migrating Cranes Arrives in Refuge at Arkansas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first migrating whooping crane to arrive on the traditional Texas Gulf Coast wintering grounds was sighted at the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge Thursday. The Interior Department said Refuge Manager Hyuston Johnson sighted the first of the traveling cranes to arrive.

MGM's Giant, "Ben-Hur," will open Nov. 2 at the Viking theater. This week an invitational preview was held for high school principals, clergymen, leaders of various civic organizations and press representatives. Here theater manager Wayne B. Berkley greets some of the previewers in the theater lobby. The film, winner of 11 Academy awards, including best picture of the year, runs for about four hours.

Attic Theater Star Stranded, Gets Rowboat

The show must go on — the best tradition of the theater was acted offstage last night by two members of Attic theater and a strong-armed oarsman in a rowboat.

Miss Fran Bubolz, music teacher at Sturgeon Bay High School, knew it was important to be at dress rehearsal of "The Chalk Garden" scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Music-Drama Center. The Attic Theater is presenting a pre-run performance of the play tonight at Port Edwards before opening next Friday night in Appleton. And Miss Bubolz is one of the stars of the show.

But Friday afternoon she found herself isolated on the northern part of Door County by the vessel that ran into the bridge over the ship canal at Sturgeon Bay. All traffic was closed.

Instead of telephoning Director Zoe Cloak in Appleton that she couldn't make the rehearsal, she scurried around for help and was able to tell Mrs. Cloak that she had found a man willing to row her across the canal. In turn, Mrs. Cloak found an Attic Theater volunteer who offered to drive up to Sturgeon Bay and bring Miss Bubolz back in time for rehearsal.

And thus it was that the rehearsal went on as planned with all the cast in their places despite the emergency.

Vote in South Will Set Fate Of Coalition

Group Faces Extinction if Kennedy Elected

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Whatever else the presidential election may bring, the outcome is certain to affect the political fate of the South more than any other region of the country.

The impact of a Kennedy victory or a Nixon victory is being widely discussed in the South, but even more pointed is the attitude of the so-called "liberal" bloc in the North which South is that support must be given to a Kennedy victory or the party as such and that chance to upset the very thing in this way the influence of the southern Democrats in Congress South, through the seniority system, have clung to advantageously for term in Congress, will be pre-choosing chairmen of committees in both houses.

Perhaps the most interesting expression on this point has come from the "New York Post," which, in announcing its support for Sen. Kennedy, says in part:

Southern Influence

"With respect to the great issue of civil rights, neither party can claim any large virtue. But on this front, too, the most meaningful immediate goal is to increase the representation of liberal Democrats in both houses. The deadly bottleneck is the coalition of conservative Republicans and southern Democrats; under Nixon, as under Eisenhower, that coalition is likely to flourish, with Lyndon Johnson retaining his power as senate leader; under Kennedy it may be finally challenged. Fearful as we were of Johnson's possible effect on the tone and substance of the Kennedy campaign, his replacement as Senate chief, may finally enable liberal Democrats and Republicans to end the stalemate on civil rights. In larger terms it is surely plain that the fate of the Negro is inextricably involved with the fate of the general human community."

Critical Decision

The argument of the professional Democrats throughout the country is that support must be given to a Kennedy victory or the party as such and that chance to upset the very thing in this way the influence of the southern Democrats in Congress South, through the seniority system, have clung to advantageously for term in Congress, will be pre-choosing chairmen of committees in both houses.

Many of the professionals know they are going against local sentiment, but they feel that it is ex-

Lutheran Society Sponsors Forum On City Needs

Community needs and problems will be discussed Oct. 27 at a dinner and workshop at Trinity Lutheran Church sponsored by the Lutheran Welfare Society of Wisconsin.

Speakers will be the Rev. Arthur Tingley, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Neenah, Sherman Frinak, Appleton, a layman; Chester Luce, a supervisor in the Outagamie County Department of Public Welfare; and Eugene Cerveny, head social worker in the Appleton office of the Lutheran Welfare Society.

The Rev. I. B. Kindem is host pastor.

An introduction to current community problems will be given by the Rev. M. E. Silseth, program chairman and public relations director for the society.

pedient for them to be recorded in favor of the Democratic ticket.

The people of the South have before them a critical decision. They would like to support their local political leaders, who, in the main, have borne the brunt of the "civil rights" struggle. But the big question is whether the coalition of conservative Republicans and southern Democrats in Congress will be preserved in the event of a Kennedy victory, or whether the dissolution of the bipartisan combination is likely.

The coalition means even more on a conservative or radical basis than it does in the "civil rights" controversy. The South is for the most part conservative. Its businessmen fear the rise of the labor monopoly because many southern plants will not be able to compete with northern businesses if unionization becomes extensive and new labor laws give the unions more power.

But the Democratic party leaders in the South are for the most part supporting the Kennedy-Johnson ticket this time, and it will be interesting to see the extent to which the voters follow those leaders.

Close Election

One thing attracting attention is the attitude of the Negro voters. One report is that Richmond, Va., for instance, may be strongly Democratic this time because of the Negro vote. Certainly this is a surprise, but the Republicans may be in for more surprises when they examine the Negro vote in several Northern states. Despite all that the Republicans did at Little Rock and about school integration and notwithstanding what they have done through the department of justice to help the Negroes in the south on voting rights, the northern Negroes do not appear to be grateful politically.

The defeat of Republican nominees for Congress and the election of more and more Democrats from the so-called "liberal" side in the North will, of course, weaken the coalition if a Democratic President is elected.

The people of the South are doubtless weighing all these factors, and that's why there is so much talk this year about a "close" election in the South. Not the least interesting of the stories that will be written after election day from different parts of the country will be the explanation of what the people of the South did at the polls.

Dowgard Uses Big Newspaper Ad Campaign

Dowgard, the world's first year round cooling system fluid, is currently being featured in an intensive advertising campaign, highlighted by big ads in the Appleton Post-Crescent. "Dowgard performs 5 plus 5 ways better than water in your radiator" is the theme of the ads.

Made by The Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich., Dowgard protects the cooling system for one full year. It stops rust and corrosion damage, prevents freezing, and protects against overheating from 40 below to 240 and above zero. Seasonal draining and flushing and the adding of rust inhibitors and even water are eliminated after a cooling system is serviced and filled completely with DOWGARD. The new blue fluid is sold by service dealers.

De Gaulle Is Muddled

The threat of French Premier Michel Debre that lack of a vote of confidence in President De Gaulle will cause dissolution of the national assembly and new elections, probably will mean that the disputed appropriation of more than a billion dollars for an independent French nuclear force will be passed. But there is trouble in France. The real cause is the continuing war in Algeria.

President De Gaulle has been accused of looking backward toward the days of French glory. When he came to power more than two years ago, he managed to revive French confidence in itself and give the country a stability that had been lacking for several generations. He appeared willing to work with the West Germans despite an understandable distrust and reason enough for prejudice.

But the war of attrition in Algeria continues to be the one big unsolved problem. De Gaulle has offered to negotiate with the rebels after a period of peace. But there are too many dissident voices in Algeria. There is Moslem and Arab nationalism, the seeking for power among big and little leaders, the pressures from the Communists, the needles from Nasser, the rigid

Regulating Go-Karts

A coroner's jury which investigated the death of an 18-year-old Route 1. Kaukauna, boy at a go-kart track, has made recommendations for restricting operation of karts which should be carefully considered by the state legislature. Three deaths have occurred in Wisconsin in connection with accidents in the karts.

At present there are rules requiring certain devices on the karts when they are operated on the public highways. But actually the karts should be restricted to private tracks. They are too small to be easily seen by automobile drivers, their operators at present do not need licenses or be old enough to merit them, and their operation is erratic. The karts are not means of trans-

Alvin C. Braun

It was significant, perhaps, that Wisconsin should experience a sharp change in its weather pattern on the day Alvin C. Braun passed from our world. It was significant we believe, and fitting, too, because it was this sort of thing which mattered most in his professional life.

Rarely does a man, even through diligent and tireless pursuit, become so closely associated with an activity as did Al Braun with the weather. His name became almost synonymous with it. But Braun was more than the Fox River Valley's "Mr. Weatherman." A wonderfully gifted engineer, his 30 years with the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company were served with dis-

Lake Steamer Explodes, 2 Killed

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Oct. 20, 1960.

The Propeller Mount Vernon, belonging to the Western Transportation Company, with a cargo of flour and grain for Buffalo, blew up yesterday morning at 20 minutes past 2 o'clock at Port Pelee, killing instantly Theodore Reese, second engineer and John Conklin, fireman.

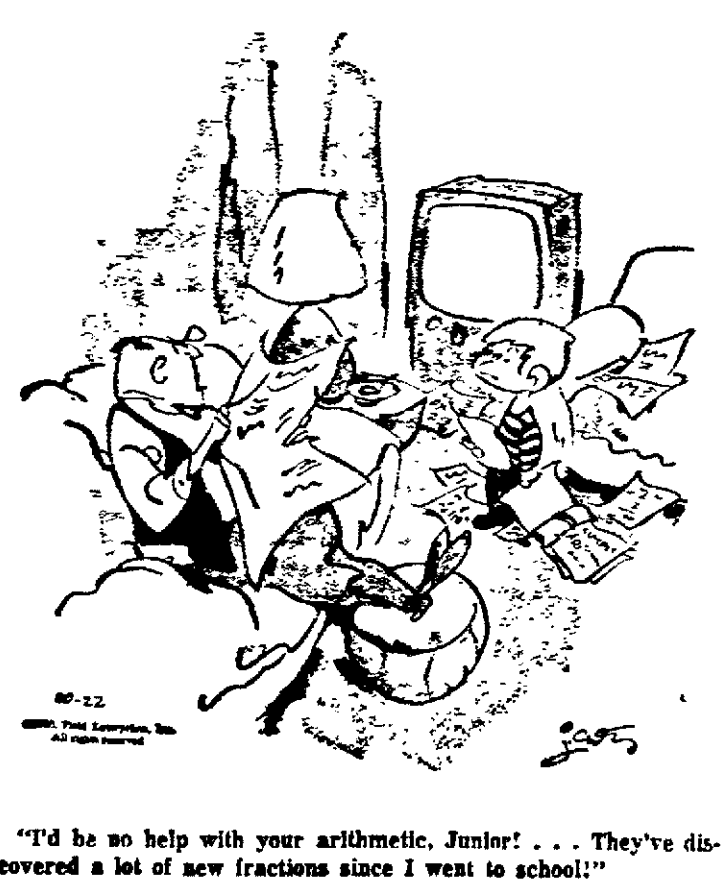

The Mount Vernon left the Detroit port for Buffalo Sunday evening at 4 o'clock with a cargo consisting of 19,900 bushels of corn, 483 barrels of flour, and 150 bags of wheat.

Owing to adverse weather, she was prevented from proceeding any farther than Pigeon Bay until yesterday morning when she again pursued her voyage. She blew up with a terrible explosion, breaking both arches and sending the after part of the boat into segments. She sunk in 20 minutes after the explosion.

Those of the crew who survived, after clinging to the rigging until daylight, were taken off by Capt. Morey of the schooner Lookout, and Capt. Howard of the clipper schooner Fox. The steamer Ocean came along afterward and brought Capt. Newman and his crew to Detroit.

New York's Bloodiest Week

BY LAWRENCE LADER
"We shall have trouble before we are through," George Templeton Strong, a wealthy New Yorker and staunch friend of Lincoln, warned in his diary one July morning in 1863. Yet the first nationwide military draft, to fill the critically depleted ranks of the Union Army,

Americans accustomed to the calm workings of the modern selective service laws will be amazed to learn what happened during the Civil War at the stormy beginning of the draft system. The nation's metropolis was then nearer to revolution than ever before or since.

began in festive mood on Saturday, July 11.

For others, there was no premonition of disaster. Yet by Monday morning, New York would be torn by the bloodiest riot in its history and would stand on the brink of revolution.

The portents had been gathering for months. New York's Copperhead Press had been attacking the draft furiously. Gov. Horatio Seymour, a Democrat, insisted the draft was unconstitutional.

Protest Exemptions

Congressman Fernando Wood seized on the draft as the perfect issue to rouse his supporters, mainly Irish immigrants. They were already embittered by the two controversial exemption clauses: one allowed a drafted man to gain release by hiring a suitable substitute; the other allowed him to buy his way out by paying $300 to the government.

Either escape was far beyond the reach of the average workman.

All that Sunday afternoon New York's East Side was crowded with angry, cursing men. Bars were jammed. The volunteer fire companies were leading centers of unrest.

At 10 a.m. on Monday, July 13, the provost marshal reopened the draft. There was no hilarity then, only catcalls and hisses.

He had drawn about 70 names when a pistol was fired outside his window. Paving stones and brickbats were thrown into the room. The crowd grabbed tables and chairs and hurled them at the draft officers. Cans of kerosene were splashed across the floor. A few minutes later the building was in flames.

Stop Firemen

The clanging fire bell on 51st Street brought Fire Chief John Decker and two loyal engine companies to the scene. They unrolled their hoses, but the howling mob fought them off. Decker pleaded with the mob to let him save the rest of the street. But it was more than an hour, and most of the houses were in ruins, before he could move in.

Emergency messages had been flooding metropolitan police headquarters, far downtown. But the mob had cut down the telegraph poles, and Supt. John Kennedy was out of touch with the upper half of the city. He decided to drive uptown to investigate.

Police Chief Mauled
Kennedy had no idea of the extent of the riot till he found himself in the middle of the mob. He was immediately recognized by the mob with bravery.

State Legislature Democratic in '81, '83

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — One reason why there is a note of caution in even the most sanguine Wisconsin Democratic victory prediction these days is an awareness of the historical record of Wisconsin elections.

The legislature and its makeup provides a fair barometer to the strength of political parties in a historical perspective.

What the Democrats are gaining for in Wisconsin today, which is mastery of both houses of the state legislature, is something that they have had only twice in the history of the state — and that so long ago that only a handful of the party loyalists can remember it from their personal experience.

The Democratic party has not had control of the legislative branch in this century, and, in fact, it came close only once, during the heyday of the first New Deal, in the 1935 session following the 1934 elections.

The Attack on the New York Tribune office prompted the police commissioner to mass his men and use ognized, attacked, and knocked to the ground. "The mob nearly killed him," the Tribune reported. Taken to police headquarters, he remained under medical care the rest of the week.

The senior member of the police board, Thomas Acton, now took command.

With only 800 men on duty that day against a mob that would soon number 50,000, Acton's strategy was to concentrate his force at Police headquarters and City Hall to protect the banks, federal installations, major hotels, and stores in the lower half of the city.

The futility of limited resistance was already being demonstrated. With 44 policemen clashed with the mob, only five came through unscathed. A 50-man company of the Army's Invalid Corps (rushed into action because of the shortage of troops) was cut to pieces even more brutally.

By noon the city was virtually in the hands of the mob. Desperate messages for help were sent to the Brooklyn Navy Yard, Governor's Island, and federal forts as far away as Massachusetts. By midnight the first reinforcements had arrived. By early Tuesday morning there were still only 1,000 federal troops in the city.

Plunder and Burn

The mobs were now attacking not only the draft but all the symbols of authority and wealth. At 46th Street they plundered three fine homes, then burned them to the ground.

Another group of rioters attacked the provost marshal's office. Still another mob fired the armory at Second Avenue and 21st Street, and Acton ordered it abandoned.

No Negro dared appear on the street. Peter Houston, a 63-year-old Mohawk Indian, was mistaken for a Negro and beaten to death.

The mob's savagery to the motivations. Most of its members were Irish, the main source of the city's cheap labor, virtually its peon class. They had the most to lose from the draft. Further, they were bitterly afraid that even cheaper Negro labor would flood the North if slavery ceased to exist.

Yet many loyal fire companies were made up of Irishmen, and a large segment of the metropolitan police were Irishmen who fought the mob with bravery.

This Sketch From an Early publication depicts the attacks on New York's Negro population.

force to put an end to the rioting.

But on that Monday afternoon, unfortunately, pent-up hatred of the Negro exploded in its most savage form. Its object was the Orphan Asylum for Colored Children.

The mob burst the doors with Negro spring from complex axes. Their superintendent led the 233 frightened children out the rear door. The mob surged through the building, stripping it bare, then set the handsome building on fire.

When the fire chief answered the call, two dozen rioters grabbed him and would have beaten him to death had not 10 firemen rushed to his rescue. Frustrated, the mob turned on the Negro children.

Twenty children were cut off from the main group. But a young Irishman on the edge of the crowd, Paddy McCaffrey, aided by others, surrounded the children and fought off the mob.

Rioters Caught
At the height of the riot that Monday evening, Commissioner Acton got word that the mob was marching on City Hall and police headquarters. He decided it was time for the first counteroffensive. He assigned 200 men to Inspector Dan Carpenter. Carpenter, promising "to win this fight or never come back alive," led his main force up Broadway with two parallel columns ready to strike from the side streets. The police caught the mob by surprise. The Times reported . . . "Broadway looked like a battleground thickly strewn with prostrate forms."

Another mob, meanwhile, had invaded the Tribune building. Acton decided to make his second major attack. Combining reinforcements, he ordered Carpenter's men to catch the rioters from the rear.

"We struck them like a thunderbolt," one officer recalled later.

Negro Hanged

That night New York was in turmoil. A Negro cartman, trying to escape under cover of darkness, was caught and hanged.

Tuesday was hot and muggy; a heavy pall of black smoke rose from innumerable fires. Mobs filled the streets at dawn.

Pitched battles, even more furious than Monday's, raged all day. Almost 5,000 rioters invaded the Union Steam Works, where thousands of government carbines were stored. A strong force of police stormed the building, piled the carbines on wagons, and marched quickly downtown to relieve Mayor George Opdyke's house, which was under attack.

That same morning Gov. Seymour arrived and issued a strong proclamation calling for the restoration of law and order. Then he addressed a large crowd—a speech that has remained the most controversial act of his controversial career.

For Appeasement

"Let me assure you that I am your friend," he told his listeners. "I wish to inform you that I have sent my adjutant general to Washington to confer with the authorities there and to have this draft suspended and stopped. . . ."

Mayor Opdyke now was harassed both by Seymour and the Peace Democrats who controlled his own board of aldermen and city council, and who were preparing a bill which would allow the city to give $300 to each drafted man to buy his way out of the service. They passed the bill on Wednesday, and Opdyke immediately vetoed it.

In the early hours of Thursday morning, the mob attacked a government warehouse on Greenwich Street, where 20,000 muskets were stored. This cache might have given them control of the city if Acton had not learned of the plan and sent a large force to stop them.

Militia Arrives

It was almost dawn before the turning point arrived. The steady tramp of thousands of feet was heard along lower Broadway, the first elements of the state militia rushed from Gettysburg. Nine more New York regiments as well as one Michigan regiment arrived in the next two days. The city was out of danger at last.

The mob was to make its last stand on the East Side. Five thousand desperate men attacked elements of the Seventh Regiment. Bullets and bricks from the rooftops killed 15 soldiers before another 700 troops arrived to clear the avenue with artillery and bayonet.

It was the decisive battle. On Friday morning, the Mayor could announce: "The riotous assemblages have been dispersed." (Copyright, 1960) Distributed by AP Newsfeatures

Agriculture Needs Action, Not Slogans

From The Atlanta Constitution

In one short sentence the Agricultural Extension Service has summarized the dilemma of farmers:

"From 1949 to 1959, Georgia farmers' cash receipts rose 56 per cent, their production expenses rose 79 per cent during the same period."

This capsule version reflects one of the main reasons why the pursuit of agriculture, especially by those with limited resources, has become such a tough row to hoe.

Next question: What, if anything, will come of those pie-in-the-sky promises that are blooming in this political year?

To reduce surpluses and at the same time to maintain a healthy economy on the farm, without intensifying repercussions from the soil bank's effects on business concerns, calls for more than a bunch of slogans smacking of Madison Avenue.

Too many generalities and not enough specifics are floating about in the political smog.

one party or the other in voting for governor ought to carry through his preference by voting for a supporting representative in the legislative branch.

Infant's Life Saved by Court Action

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—An emergency court set up in a maternity hospital saved the life of a day-old baby boy and made British legal history.

For 90 minutes the baby hovered on the brink of death. Only a complete change of blood could save him.

But the parents, both Jehovah's Witnesses, refused to allow a transfusion because it was against their religious beliefs.

The doctors turned to the law. A makeshift juvenile court was held in a room adjoining the maternity ward.

County Welfare Officer Florence Valentine sought legal custody of the baby on the ground that it was in danger of unnecessary suffering.

A doctor testified that if the child did not get the transfusion and lived, it would be a mental defect.

The father—juvenile court rules forbid the publication of his name—still refused permission for the operation.

The magistrate, Lady Rothschild, quickly gave her decision.

She committed the baby temporarily into the welfare officer's care, and thus allowed her to give permission for the operation.

"It is our responsibility to protect the life of the child," said Lady Rothschild.

Minutes later doctors began the transfusion.

Last night, 24 hours later, the hospital reported:

"Everything is all right. The child's condition is satisfactory."

The little dog may be worn on a jacket, carried around in a pocket or placed on your desk at school as your mascot.

The dog is about three inches long and two and a quarter inches tall. He can be any kind of dog you choose. The diagram above suggests a wire-haired terrier. Find a small picture of the dog you wish to make and use it as a pattern when cutting the cloth or leather. You must cut out two identical sides. They are to be stitched together at the edges with thread and stuffed.

Figure 1 shows the two sides and Figure 2 shows how to sew them together. Keep some cotton at hand as you sew. When you have the dog's head stitched together, stuff some cotton into it. (Figure 3). Stitch further and then stuff in some more cotton. By the time you are ready to make the final stitches, the dog will be completely stuffed.

Small buttons can be sewed to the head of the dog for eyes (Figure 5). He can be worn on the lapel (Figure 4) by pinning a safety pin through the lapel from the back, into the dog and then back into the lapel.

Unit Endorses Administrator For State Courts

Judicial Council Will Ask Legislature to Create New Office

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Establishment of a state courts administrator as a kind of business manager of the trial tribunals of Wisconsin was endorsed here Friday by the influential Wisconsin Judicial Council.

The council said it would urge such action upon the new legislature in January, but it said the precise mechanical details remain to be worked out. The administrator would probably be made a deputy of the chief justice of the state supreme court, which is thought to have inherent powers for the assignment of local judges to trial work in districts other than their own.

The administrator would keep track of the volume of court work, and assign judges for special services where the volume of litigation required assistance for local jurists. Purpose would be to get maximum performance out of the judicial manpower of the state provided in the new trial court reorganization act that will take effect in 1962.

Used Elsewhere

The assignment machinery has been successfully used in other states, council members said. Among the lower trial courts of the state the exchange of judges has been infrequent. Circuit court assignments have been handled informally by the state board of circuit judges. Presumably that function would also be transferred to the new court administrator.

Under the judicial reform act municipal and county courts as they have operated will be abolished and there will be a new and uniform system of county courts of consistent jurisdiction, apportioned according to the work loads of localities as shown by the statistical studies of the council. About 130 of such county courts are provided for in the act, but some local bar associations have indicated that they will ask for additional judges.

Some form of state control of the local trial courts was probably implied, some observers said, when the legislature provided that the state treasury will pay half of the costs of the operation of the county tribunals, including salaries of their judges, clerks and reporters.

The suits, which seek a grand total of $585,555.85, claim negligence on the part of the Merrill Gas Co. and the Bosio Construction Corp., also of Merrill.

The gas company was cited for its alleged failure to discontinue the use of a gas pipe off a lot directly behind the department store, or to make an inspection of the pipe from the time that excavation work for a new building was started on the lot until the date of the explosion. The plaintiffs also claim that the gas company was negligent in the original installation of the pipe and should have discovered the leak they claim was caused by the excavation work.

The Bosio firm was cited for alleged negligence in the operation of heavy equipment at the site, causing the gas pipe to break and thereby allowing gas to escape.

The blast lifted off the roof of the building and sent it crashing into the basement. Windows in adjoining buildings were shattered by the force of the explosion. Rescue workers said they could see the flames spreading through the debris as they fought to reach several persons trapped inside.

The State Industrial Commission conducted an intensive investigation of the explosion and stated in its report that it assumed a broken pipe carrying propane gas was responsible.

One reason for the delay in repairs is the unavailability of heavy machinery in the neighborhood for the repair job. Equipment may have to be brought from Wausau, it was said.

Officials also said they are checking the possibility of installing temporary plank on the railroad bridge spanning the bay for auxiliary emergency service.

News of the mishap Friday brought a rush of state highway officials from their offices to the scene of the accident.

Among the officials who drove to Door County immediately were Chairman Harvey Glasse, who formerly lived at nearby Ellison Bay, E. L. Roettger, chief state highway engineer, Harold Schulz, chief of the state bridge division, and Charles Allen of the maintenance section. They were accompanied by other specialists.

5 Civil Suits Started in Merrill Blast

Plaintiffs Ask Over Half Million From Two Firms

MERRILL (AP)—Five separate civil suits seeking more than a half million dollars were initiated Friday in the deaths of five persons in the explosion and fire that destroyed the J. C. Penney Co. department store here July 18.

The plaintiffs in the suits, seeking damages in the deaths of their wives or husbands, were listed as Gay Wiesen, Lawrence Corhardt, Mrs. Grace Johnson, Gaylord Roesiter and Louis Hamilton.

Ten persons died as a result of the explosion and fire that turned the building located in the heart of this small community's business district into a raging inferno.

The suits, which seek a grand total of $585,555.85, claim negligence on the part of the Merrill Gas Co. and the Bosio Construction Corp., also of Merrill.

Registration Queries Not Clerk's Doing

Appleton City Clerk Eiden J. Broehm's office has been receiving calls from persons who have been called or received a postal card informing them they are not registered.

Some of those called are registered and they've been asking what's going on.

What's going on is that an unidentified organization is sending out cards and making phone calls on the basis of an old poll list and there is no connection with Broehm's office. Broehm, in fact, doesn't know where the organization is or what it is. All he knows is that whatever list of voters it is using is not up to date.

Broehm doesn't mind getting queries on registration but he doesn't enjoy being blamed for not registering people when he really has.

Efforts to find the organization have been fruitless.

The city clerk's office registered another 265 voters Friday evening. Total registration now is 23,170.

This was the last of five Friday nights when Clerk Eiden J. Broehm had special evening hours for those who could not get to the office during regular hours.

No More

Broehm will not have any more special evening hours, but registrations will be accepted in his office from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. until Wednesday, when registration for the Nov. 8 election closes.

In addition to those who registered Friday, 18 persons reported changes of address, four absentee ballots were cast and two applications were made for presidential ballots.

Ferry Used To Reconnect Severed Area

Door County Mishap Cuts Bridge Link For 10 Days, 2 Weeks

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Two Washington Island car ferries were summoned to Sturgeon Bay Friday to provide transportation for some 30,000 persons "isolated" on the Door County peninsula when a freighter crashed into the only highway bridge over Sturgeon Bay.

The Swedish-American Line freighter Carlsholm disabled the bridge — which carries Highway 42-57 traffic — when it rammed the span with its bow about 10:30 a.m. Friday.

Officials guessed that the damage caused by a ship collision with the bridge Friday will put the span out of commission for 10 days to two weeks.

One reason for the delay in repairs is the unavailability of heavy machinery in the neighborhood for the repair job. Equipment may have to be brought from Wausau, it was said.

Nice Guys Don't Go Out With Girls Who Aren't the Same

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN Please publish this letter and save some young guys from agony and court costs.

A b o u t 10 months ago a buddy of mine started to date a very cute girl. She had lots of personality and lots of dates. Four months later she told him she was pregnant and he had to marry her. He said no because he wasn't sure the child was his. He knew she had always been popular and he never did trust her 100 per cent.

Anyway he refused to marry her so she had him arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. He's out on bond now, but due in court when the baby is born. How can nice guys protect themselves against dames like this.—Friend

Dear Friend: The best way for "nice guys" to protect themselves against "dames like this" is to stay so far away from them that there's no chance of being named as a candidate for fatherhood.

I get many letters on this subject and the refrain is always the same: "I could be the father, but she had lots of 'friends,' and I think I'm being hooked."

I tell these fellows, "If there is any possibility that you could be the father than I can't help you."

The only prayer an innocent guy has is to wait until the baby is born and hope the blood test proves he's not the father. (No blood test can prove a man is the father; it can prove only that he is not.)

If the tests fail to rule him out as the possible father, the girl's word is usually taken, unless it can be demonstrated that she is a total tramp.

DEAR ANN LANDERS I'm going to be married soon and need your advice. My mother passed away five years ago. She and I were very close.

I promised Mom that on my wedding day I would go to the

There Can be More to Score Than Meets Eye

When you make the first game borhood of 300 points is more of a rubber you write the trick realistic. The reason for this score below the line, but nothing duction is that winning the first game of a rubber exposes you to perfectly well that your first game gives you a big headstart toward the winning of the rubber. That is worth an unwritten value of 300 points, it must be worth something.

Likewise, suppose you bid and make two spades, scoring 60 points below the line. That part score improves your chance to win a game; and this must be worth something.

far wrong if you think of a game as worth about 500 points in all — counting the tricks and the value of the game as well. A part score, counting both the written and the unwritten score, is worth about 150 points.

When you're warned not to forget the score, your first thought is of a part score. It's easy to forget you have a part score and thus have a bidding mix-up. There's another kind of forgetfulness, however, that can be even more expensive.

This hand was dealt in an all-male rough and ready game in which the players worked harder at needing each other than at getting to the right contract. It is a bidding mix-up. There's another kind of forgetfulness, however, that can be even more expensive.

When both sides have won a game, the rubber game is quite thinking. South glanced at the clearly worth 300 points. That is a written, not an unwritten, score goodness, I thought we were on score."

Part Score Values
Nobody knows what a part score is really worth. West looked at the pad and replied, "Well, let's get this straight. You're not on score."

South nodded sadly and mumbled something about stopping un-game. If they are timid they may let you steal a game from under their noses. Either way, your part score may have a high value. But if your next hand is an easy game-going hand, the part score may be quite unnecessary.

The average value of a part up West's mind for him. "All score in most rubber bridge right," he announced. "You're not in game and I'll let you stay there."

Thereupon West passed and led the jack of spades.

Catastrophe
West's pass was short-sighted but the punishment didn't fit the crime. It was cruel and unusual, value of games and part scores and probably unconstitutional.

South let the first trick ride and was written down as part of the score. In tournament bridge, he next led a spade to the ace for example, the value of a part score is fixed at 50 points. Any non-vulnerable game is given a value of 300 points; any vulnerable game, 500 points.

In rubber bridge, you won't go

Declarer continued by leading the jack of diamonds to dummy's queen. Two more rounds of trumps from the dummy drew East's trumps and allowed South to discard the two low clubs.

Hard Lesson
Finally, South led the queen of hearts from dummy, giving up just one trick to the ace of hearts. South thus made his redoubled contract with five over-tricks.

"That's only 80 points below the line," South announced with all the sadness he could muster. Let us draw a veil over the rest of the conversation. You can probably imagine the nature of West's reply as he wrote down the score for this hand. True, South got only 80 points below the line, but he got 50 points for making the contract and 2,000 points for the overtricks. West had forgotten that overtricks at a vul-

PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Moller, D.V.M.

Q. We've heard a lot about hip dis- plasia in dogs. What is the prognosis, and will a carefully bred pup be free of it? Mary Meyer of Hamilton, Ont.

A. Although hip dis- plasia was noted by Hippocrates in 400 B.C., it was not recognized in dogs until 1935. The afflicted pup will show signs of the dis- ability between three to five months of age. He will have a peculiar gait, unsteady hind quarters, and difficulty in rising and mounting stairs. Positive diagnosis can only be made after X-ray. There are five types of hip dis- plasia, and with the exception of one, all are congenital. The disease seems more prevalent in certain breeds, particularly German Shepherds. Some cases can be corrected by surgery, and the non-congenital form of the disease may automati- cally disappear when the dog is about twelve months old. If the pup's predecessors have no his- tory of hip dis- plasia, it's reason- able to assume that he'll be free of it too.

AREA WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS

HELP GUARD LIBERTY

With this page of pictures the Post-Crescent salutes its neighbor journalists, the editors of weekly newspapers in this part of Wisconsin.

This is National Newspaper Week, a week set aside to remind Americans of a right basic in this nation, the Right to Know.

This is guaranteed by our fundamental laws to everyone and for everyone. It is a guarantee everyone has a responsibility in preserving.

These editors take a big share in this responsibility.

Not because the hours are short, the salaries high or the work easy do these Americans spend their lives at processing the news. The profession of journalism is often very trying and demanding and the financial rewards are not great.

But there are other rewards. These weekly editors can feel real pride in a job well done in preserving a basic freedom of the American way of life. They may share in the esteem of their readers for the service they perform in keeping their neighbors informed.

The Post-Crescent asks its readers to join in hailing these men and women dedicated to the ancient and honored profession of gathering and dispensing the news of the day.

Conversation Not Conversion

Two Noted Leaders of Catholic and Protestant Faiths Discuss Religion

Religion in the News
BY JULES LOH

NEW YORK — A serious advocate of the ever-growing dialogue between the great faiths of America demand one exacting test of the other's sincerity: Conversation, rather than conversion, must be the immediate goal.

Two publishers have passed the test admirably with new offerings which deserve close attention by persons interested in the religious Catholic authorities who deal with problems of a pluralistic society, specific issues as well as general "An American Dialogue," by subjects on which the two religious bodies are divided.

Robert McAfee Brown and Gustave Weigel, S. J., Doubleday & Co., Inc., brings together candid discussions of Protestantism and Catholicism by two brilliant spokesmen for the two religious groups—but not in the usual way. The street issues—Public education, church-state relations, birth control and the like.

Leaders Speak
Father Weigel, a noted Jesuit author, lecturer and theologian, gives his views of Protestantism. Dr. Brown, author and professor of systematic theology at Union Theological Seminary, takes a Protestant look at Catholicism. The approach of each is not limited to his critical appraisal of the other's faith. Both recognize shortcomings in views frequently taken by members of their own groups, and politely chide their followers for them.

"How are Catholics to react," asks Presbyterian Dr. Brown, "when they are pilloried on such charges as these: 'The church insists that everybody believe the same things (nobody can question the dogmas); the church has too many conflicting opinions (whom are we to believe about the relationship of church and state?);'"

Not Political Entity

Rainbow Supper Club

Corner Highway 45 and 54
New London, Wisconsin

Mr. Glenn Arthur
Advertising Director
Appleton Post-Crescent
Appleton, Wisconsin

Dear Mr. Arthur:

The problem we faced at the time we were ready to announce the Grand Opening of the Rainbow Supper Club here in New London was this: How to attract the attention and business of discriminating diners from an area already noted for the number and quality of its supper clubs.

Because of the Post-Crescent's excellent coverage of the area, and the known impact of color advertising, the decision was made to use two full pages in the paper, one of them in color. The ads appeared on Friday, and we awaited the results.

We were almost overwhelmed, speaking literally. Thousands of visitors stopped to dine and to shop in our cheese and gift shop. Autos crowded our spacious parking lot and overflowed into all available adjacent areas. We were too busy Friday night and Sunday for the staff to keep accurate count, but 550 dinners were served Saturday afternoon and evening to Post-Crescent readers who were moved to visit our establishment by our Friday ads.

Apparently the color in our advertisement had great impact, judging by the comments of our customers, the majority of whom came from throughout the Post-Crescent's circulation area.

The attendance for this event far exceeded our most optimistic expectations, and you can be sure we will continue our advertising program in the pages of your paper. Our thanks especially to Les Haynes for his expert assistance and suggestions regarding the use of color. His help, and that of all your people, paid off handsomely in the opening of our new business.

Sincerely,

M. Schroeder

$45,571 Library Budget Sought

Estimate $4,000 From Town as Share of Costs; Seek Repairs

MENASHA — Elsha D. Smith Public Library has asked a budget for 1961 of $45,571, compared to this year's $42,586.

Listed separately is $4,000 from the Town of Menasha as a share of library costs. The town has withdrawn from the Winnebago County Library System and joined the city library.

A large increase is an estimated $1,000 to paint the library's exterior woodwork and $780 for city assessments for street paving, sidewalk, curb and gutter work, performed last summer.

Salaries make the largest part of the budget — $31,030, compared to the 1960 budget figure of $30,360.

The library plans to spend $3,500 next year for new books, compared to $3,282. This year an extra $1,100 was provided in September by the common council for new books.

Most other expenses for next year show little change from 1960. They include $1,150 for Wisconsin Retirement Fund; $932 for social security; $460 for Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance; $800 for library supplies and stationery; $300 for postage and petty cash; $600 for building insurance; $50 for printing; $300 furniture and equipment; $200 cleaning supplies; $450 for general repairs outside of the painting and city-assessed work; $460 for water and electricity; $1,100 for heat; $250 for telephone; $100 for auditing; and $600 for periodicals.

Mrs. Crosby Given Year at Taycheedah

Judge Revokes Probation for Concealing Gun

OSHKOSH — Municipal Judge Arnold J. Cane Friday afternoon revoked the probation of Mrs. Patricia Crosby, 19, 878 1/2 Second St., Menasha, and sentenced her to an indeterminate term of not more than a year at the State Women's Prison at Taycheedah.

The probation, granted last Dec. 14 for one year, was revoked at the request of the State Department of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Crosby had been placed on probation for carrying concealed weapons, a .22 caliber revolver, into the Menasha Police Station on Aug. 31, 1959, after waving the gun in a tavern. She at first denied possession of the gun and then pulled it from her shorts and aimed it at the police officials.

When she moved the gun slightly, police tried to disarm her, the gun discharged, the bullet going through a section of the front door casing.

Broke Probation The State Department of Public Welfare cited that Mrs. Crosby by had broken parole by leaving the state without permission, going to Michigan last weekend with a 17-year-old youth and her two children, that she had been drinking and associating with other probationers and parolees, participating in this 17-year-old youth, and frequentlying taverns, all in violation of her probation requirements.

She had been reunited with her husband for a time during her probation but they have since been separated, the court was advised.

During the proceedings Mrs. Crosby declined the naming of an attorney by the court, declined to examine the witness and deplored to say anything in her own behalf.

Bobby Milton, Hall Star for Trotter Team

Long-Time Harlem Stars to Appear Here on Oct. 30

MENASHA — Two long-time cogs in the Harlem Globetrotter organization — Bobby Milton and Bob "Showboat" Hall — will appear with the Trotters here Sunday Oct. 30 when they play the Hawaiian Fifth Staters at the Menasha High school Gym.

The program is sponsored by the Menasha Athletic Association, which will use the funds to further their many sports endeavors. Hall is the comedian and outstanding pivotman of this unit of the Trotters. He received a try-out in 1948 taking a leave of absence from the team in Detroit where he was employed as a welder and never returned.

Hall didn't play basketball in high school but became interested in the sport in 1944 when he saw the Trotters perform in Detroit. Under the coaching of Leon Wheeler he developed fast and soon made the Globetrotter roster.

Several years of tutelage in the Trotters' farm system developed him and the last few years the 6-2, 190 pounder has attained real stardom. He has become one of the finest comedians in Globetrotter history.

Milton, who had a whirlwind career at Fort Wayne Central High School and Anderson College in Indiana, is in his 11th year with the Trotter organization. The span would have been longer but he took time out for military service before rejoining the organization four years ago.

Milton, who is 6-1, would like nothing better than to play as a Trotter varsity man but the organization has found his services more valuable in his current capacity because he is a good leader and teacher. Several times he has been put in charge of farm clubs as player-coach or with units which have been sent on jaunts to various parts of the globe.

A Veteran performer, Bobby Milton, will play with the Harlem Globetrotter unit which meets the Hawaiian Fifth Staters Sunday, Oct. 30, at the Menasha High School gym.

Their last perfect league slate was in 1955, the last time they took the clear bunting.

The Zephyrs could, of course, should they lose, still take the singular crown providing one of St. John's last two foes knocks it off.

Added Incentive
And as an added incentive, most of this year's starters were involved in last year's hassle when the Cavaliers rose up and handed them a stinging 21-0 loss in the bitter cold at Marinette.

The Northerners have been playing weekly since Sept. 2, have met seven foes and been beaten by all of them. They are in a big rebuilding stage for 19 lettermen who helped rip the Zephyrs, picked up their diplomas in June. Only a couple of boys who saw action last year are back. The starting lineup includes only two seniors and there is a big contingent of sophomores and even some freshmen.

Coached by the veteran Marty Crowe, the Marinette attack depends on trickery to compensate for the lack of experience. The familiar Crowe offense includes spinners, laterals, double hand-offs and the like.

Passing Attack
The Cavaliers frequently take to the air and are expected to do so more than ever Sunday because the Zephyrs' big fault has been a porous pass defense. In losing to Fond du Lac Springs 37-19 Sunday, Marinette passed for 127 yards.

Greg Walker, Jack Early and Mike Bradley, the latter a freshman, are the most consistent ball carriers. The Cavaliers had trouble finding the handle on the ball at Fond du Lac and fumbled 11 times.

In their only other conference start, the Cavaliers bowed to Pennington 26-0. Their non-league losses were to Coleman, Casco, Peshtigo, Holy Name of Escanaba and Wisconsin Rapids Assumption.

St. Mary's high-powered offense has rolled for 98 points in the last three games and in the same span the defense has only given up seven. In their six starts, the Menashians have chalked up 144 points to 40 for their opponents.

St. Mary, which next year will find itself much in Marinette's situation, will field an all-veteran lineup with 11 seniors or 10 seniors and one junior in the starting lineup.

Last year's game was postponed twice because of snow and cold weather before it finally was played on a Monday night. In the series between the two clubs, St. Mary has an 11-3-2 edge. In the last meeting here two years ago, St. Mary romped home 41-0.

Letterman half back Paul Walbrun, a senior, is expected to see considerable action for St. Mary in Sunday's home game against Marinette Central Catholic. Walbrun ran 87 yards for a touchdown against Oshkosh Lourdes last weekend.

Menasha's junior varsity football squad will close its schedule with a 7 p.m. Monday game against Shawano at Shawano.

The Bees have a 1-3 record after a win over Neenah and losses to Kaukauna and Neenah. Shawano holds a 3-1 mark, the lone loss coming at the hands of Neenah last Monday.

Menasha scored single touchdowns in the second and third quarters to lead up a 14-6 win in last year's meeting.

MILWAUKEE — It's a bit early for major numbers, but the Packers have one No. 1.

The Packers will be going for victory 3 against the 49ers at County Stadium Sunday afternoon and by so accomplishing they can hard the 49ers loss 3.

This is more than a numbers' game. A Packer victory would (1) keep Green Bay in a virtual tie with the other leaders, the Colts and Bears, and (2) put the 49ers on the brink of being eliminated from the title race.

A record crowd is expected. It could go as high as 42,000, thus snapping the mark of 40,000 fans who turned out to see the Packer Colt-Anche debut here in '55 kickoff is set for 1:06.

Green Bay has been selected as a 10-point favorite, and that's historical. The Packers haven't been favored by that much for years.

Were Impressed
This wide spread shows the experts' were impressed by the 49ers' 27-10 loss to the Bears last Sunday.

That setback is what's worrying Packer Coach Vince Lombardi. He hopes the Packers, who were idle last Sunday, can take the San Francisco assault and then launch their own.

Limited to 19, 12, 14 and 10 points in their four games, the 49ers figure to blast loose with a flock of points. That could happen if the Packers' defense isn't up to the toughness that held the Bears to 17, the Lions to 9 and the Colts to 21.

One member of the starting drive started on the Bulldog 34 where halfback Dick Emerich took a Kaukauna punt. Dick Stern, the New London fullback picked up a 11-yard first down on the first play.

After a gain of three yards by Dick Emerich, Stern passed to Emerich on 40-yard completion, giving the Bulldogs a first and 10.

Colts, Bears Both Expected To Post Wins

Browns Selected As 10-Point Pick To Down Eagles

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cleveland Browns, bidding for their once familiar role as kings of the National Football League are 10-point favorites to beat the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday and strengthen their hold on first place in the NFL's eastern division.

The Browns' chief rivals for the spot, the New York Giants, are idle in a six-game program which is not expected to do much shaking up of the standings.

The Baltimore Colts and Chicago Bears tied for the western division lead with 31 records, are heavily favored to win their fourth game of the campaign.

The Colts, behind quarterback Johnny Unitas, are a 14-point choice over the Detroit Lions, who have shown a conspicuous absence of scoring punch. The Bears are figured to be a touchdown better than the Los Angeles Rams, who are working on a losing streak.

Favor Cards
The Green Bay Packers are favored by ten points over the San Francisco 49ers at Milwaukee. The St. Louis Cardinals are 10 over the Dallas Cowboys, and the Pittsburgh Steelers are 3½ over the Redskins at Washington.

The Browns, who are tied at 10 in the eastern division with the one-tied Giants but who have played one less game, beat the Eagles in their first meeting, 41-24, but the Philadelphians have been improving with age. Norm von Brocklin, the Eagle quarterback, is healthy again after an ankle injury and should be able to put up a good game against the Browns' Jimmy Brown and Bobby Mitchell.

The Colts have shown inclinations to slump—such as in their 35-21 loss to Green Bay—but they shouldn't have too much trouble with the puncheonless Lions. The Rams could be much tougher against the Bears who beat them in their opener 3-27. The Rams outgamed the Colts last week.

Supplementing the NFL program are three games in the new American League. Houston defends its eastern division lead against the Titans at New York. Boston plays at Denver and Oakland at Buffalo.

Truckers Tip Menasha, 13-0, Gain Tie for Fifth in M-E

Doug Huebner and Dick Hedtke Score TDs on Nifty Jaunts

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MENASHA—Clintonville scored in the first and fourth periods, choked off Menasha drives with two fumble recoveries and three pass interceptions and walked off Butte des Morts Field with a 13-0 win over the Bluejays here Friday night.

The loss dampened Menasha's homecoming festivities and the result gave both clubs 2-3 Mid-Eastern Conference records.

Although they had possession of the ball more often than the winners, the Bluejays didn't threaten seriously. Their deepest penetration was to the Truckers' 25. They reached the 26 on another occasion but both times a pass interception and a lost fumble squelched their touchdown plans.

Lead 6-0 at Quarter
The Truckers failed to make a first down in the first period yet had a 6-0 lead at its conclusion.

They got their first TD drive in motion when Doug Huebner returned Bob Stumpf's punt from the Truckers' 47 to Menasha's 35.

They made two yards on the first play and threw an incomplete pass on the second. Huebner, who did an excellent job running the team while subbing for the injured Dick Bennett, sent his club in a spread formation, took the ball from center, went around the right side of the line and scampered 77 yards to score.

He was temporarily halted a couple of times but managed to scurry away. John Katona's placement attempt was blocked by Tom Leonard.

Hedtke Tallies
The visitors made their first touchdown lead stand up until midway in the final period when they tallied again. The clincher was a nice 31 yard run by halfback Dick Hedtke.

Clintonville had advanced from its 32 to the Jay 18 where Menasha's Steve Bachhuber recovered Huebner's fumble. Two plays later

Misses 700 By One Pin

Bill Fraser, 23, Of Appleton Leads Trinity League

William Fraser, 23, 930 W. Franklin St., picked up a 6-7-10 split in the last frame Friday night at Hahn's Alleys but missed a national honor count by a single pin.

Bowling with Carlson's team in the Trinity Lutheran League, Fraser hit 221, 224 and 234 for a 689 as his team won two games. It was the highest series bowled in league history.

It also was Fraser's best sanctioned effort. His previous high was 686, although he has recorded a 743 in open bowling.

Out of service only three months, Fraser had a 194 average in an Omaha, Neb., league last year. He's been bowling less than three years, but now is on the alleys five times a week.

Harold Mueller rolled 228. Other high series were by William Storch, 576, Stanley Hauge, 561.

Tokyo Team Beats San Francisco, 1-0

TOKYO (AP) — The favored San Francisco Giants were shut out 1-0 today by the Yomiuri Giants as the visitors opened their 16-game goodwill tour of Japan.

The Tokyo team scored its run in the seventh inning. Centerfielder Akira Kuramatsu smashed a high fly which Willie Mays dropped to give the Japanese a triple. He then scored on a squeeze bunt.

Waldo then moved to the Foxes 45 but was held on downs. In four plays FVL scored on Mueller's 7-yard run. Darwin Hintz kick was no good. The half ended 34-0.

Neither team scored in the third period, as both teams were using reserves. FVL had been using reserves since the first period.

Picking up new life, FVL scored four touchdowns in the final stanza. On the third play following a punt return, Vetter ran Klump scored for 35 yards and a TD. After a five yard penalty, Hintz missed the extra-point.

Waldo attempted a pass on first down after receiving the kick-off and Vetter intercepted and ran back 30 yards for still another 6-point Klump fell short of the goal line in the conversion attempt.

Papermaker Passing Earns 27-7 Triumph Over Shawano High

Tom Roovers Hurls Three Touchdowns, Runs for Another

SHAWANO — Kimberly displayed a powerful passing attack here Friday night and defeated the Shawano Indians, 27-7, in a Mid-Eastern Conference football game.

The victory hiked the Papermakers into a third place tie with Two Rivers. Shawano dropped from a tie for seventh into the cellar.

Tom Roovers and Al Hietpas formed a fine combination. Hietpas came into the ball game at end for Tom Rooyakkers who sprained tendons in his ankle.

Roovers figured in all of the Kimberly scores, passing for three and keeping one himself.

Gold Rush in London Like California's

Latter-Day One Of Price Rather Than Mining Ore

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—A new gold rush is on in London. It has almost as many trappings as the California gold rush and more international drama than the rush to the Klondike.

The latter-day gold rush is one of price rather than mining. But it involves the Swiss bankers, whose moves in international finance are always cloaked in secrecy and therefore doubly interesting to the public.

The gold price hike also involves the prestige of the American dollar—of what the U.S. Treasury might do about its fixed price for gold. It dips deep into the uncertainty about the trend of the U.S. economy and even the possible effect on the economy of the U.S. election.

Tied to U's

The spurt in the price of gold in London is tied in closely with our policy of easier money and lower interest rates and with the subsequent flow of so-called hot money from Wall Street to Europe, especially to West Germany and Switzerland, where money commands higher returns.

The gold rush has sparked price rises here and abroad in the stocks of gold producers.

Reduced to bare figures the gold rush is eye-catching enough. Monday the price of gold on the London market jumped 1 1/2 cents an ounce. Tuesday it rose 8 cents. Wednesday it jumped 26 1/2 cents. Thursday morning it spurted nearly $3 an ounce.

By law the U.S. Treasury price is $35 an ounce.

Why the sudden notion that gold is worth more than that?

Swiss Bankers

The British trace the immediate rush to buy gold to the action of Swiss bankers acting for their unnamed clients who want to turn their dollar holdings into gold. This is to evade Swiss decrees aimed at halting the influx of hot money.

The Swiss now charge a 1 per billion.

Pick DePere Man Airmen of Month

Donald J. Van De Voort, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Van De Voort, route 1, West DePere, has been selected as the 551st Operations Squadron airman of the month at Otis Air Force Base, Mass.

Van De Voort, a 1957 graduate of Kaukauna High School, entered the Air Force in January, 1958 and took his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He spent 18 months on Okinawa as a munitions specialist and now is a chemical, biological and radiological defense instructor at Otis.

cent commission on deposits of foreign funds and the banks aren't allowed to pay interest on foreign funds deposited with them. The money that once sought investment in high yielding short-term U.S. securities started leaving this country when interest rates dropped. The Swiss are trying to discourage the excess flow.

Long Term

A longer term reason for the conversion of dollar holdings into gold is belief in some circles that the U.S. dollar isn't the super-strong currency it once was.

And another belief stubbornly held despite strong and highly convincing U.S. Treasury denials is that the deficit in this country's balance of payments and its loss of gold in the last three years may force a devaluation of the dollar. That is, the Treasury would raise the price it would pay for gold.

The payments deficit and gold loss grew out of three years of loss in this country paying out more dollars for imports, foreign aid, travel, private investments abroad, military bases than it took in for its exports, services and profits on overseas investments.

Our exports are currently running nearly $4 billion higher than our imports, compared with this time a year ago when they were about equal. But the deficit, from other sources, though smaller, still exists. And the excess dollars that central banks of other nations get this way can be turned into gold under our law.

Our gold holdings are now about $18 1/2 billion. Most obtained by little trouble would arise unless they fell below $18 billion.

New Lighting System to Aid Pilots at Austin Straubel Port

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Sequence flashing lights for the high intensity lighting system at Austin Straubel field are included in a $163 million expansion of the United States air navigation and traffic controls. Several projects at other Wisconsin airports also are included in the Federal program announced in Washington by the Federal Aviation Agency.

The airport has had a high intensity lighting system extending some 3,000 feet from the southwest end of the last year. The bars of high intensity lights cluded in the FAA program for the fiscal year ending next June of the runway are guides to pilots landing under inclement weather, a $2,260,000 air route traffic control center and a $293,000 long range radar beacon at Rome in Jefferson County; a $104,000 very high frequency omnidirectional radio range at Timmerman Field, Oshkosh; and a weather bureau teletypewriter service, costing $14,400, at Grantsburg.

State Colleges' Enrollments Up 1,326 Students

Figures Released After Drop Weeks

Final Wisconsin State College system enrollment statistics show a gain of 1,326 four-year students over the enrollment at the nine colleges during the fall of 1959. Figures received from college registrars at the end of the third week of classes — by which time students not seriously inclined to attend college have disappeared from the campuses — gave a total of 15,644 students as compared with 14,318 at the end of the third week last year.

Of the total, only 328 students are attending on a part-time basis, the remainder being full-time college students.

Red Feather Drive Closes With $121,586

Clean-Up Campaign May Reach Goal of $159,252

The final Red Feather fund report meeting last night showed that $121,586 of the $159,252 goal has been received, and drive leaders are optimistic about prospects of hitting the goal during the clean-up campaign.

At present, 76.3 per cent of the goal is accounted for. Two teams went over their quotas. One was a life insurance company soliciting group headed by Robert Steudel. The other was a community organization solicitation group headed by Al Johnson.

Marvin Heiden, fund drive chairman, said today it is possible to meet the goal if all workers complete all their contacts. He said an intensive clean-up campaign is underway.

Top Report

Heiden said leaders also were encouraged by last night's report meeting, which recorded a volume of reports that topped all previous drives.

The following breakdown shows how much each of the eight solicitation divisions brought in and the percentage of its goal:

Large firms, $78,025.39, or 92.1 per cent.

Industrial, $4,070.24, or 45.5 per cent.

Mercantile, $6,562.53, or 49.5 per cent.

Commercial, $12,110.89, or 75.7 per cent.

Construction, $533, or 8.5 per cent.

Public-civic, $6,511.84, or 81.4 per cent.

Professional, $2,452, or 39.5 per cent.

General solicitation, $9,780.50, or 64.1 per cent.
